

stranged. Information is incomplete as to whether the Turks suffered casualties or whether Tripoli has surrendered.

It is reported from Rome that negotiations for the surrender of Tripoli will be entered into to-morrow. It is also uncertain whether any Italians landed, but the first contingent of the expeditionary force has left Italy and according to Tripoli reports the occupation of Tripoli will begin Thursday or Friday by the landing of contingents from the warships.

The post-office and the Italian consulate at Malta are accepting mails for Tripoli, and the consul has promised newspaper correspondents that they will be allowed to land in Tripoli Friday.

While Italy is thus carrying out the program of establishing herself in Tripoli the Turkish government is in a helpless tangle. The ministry is virtually non-existent, discussions between the Young Turks and the men of the older regime rendering the adoption of any definite line of policy impossible.

For the moment all talk of mediation or peace negotiations has been relegated to the background.

More Like Target Practice.
Rome, via Frontier, October 4.—All reports that the bombardments of Tripoli are causing great destruction must be discarded. It is announced here, until given official confirmation. The three admirals responsible for the blockade have instructions to avoid unnecessary damage and limit their action to silencing the Turkish batteries and forcing the garrison to surrender or evacuate.

In cautioning the fleet commanders the minister of marine told the officers to remember that Tripoli was about to pass under Italian control and that more damage done, the greater would be the expense of repair later.

Admiral Thaon di Revel says: "The action appeared more like a shooting competition than a bombardment. Officers and sailors placed wagers on the results. In one instance an order was given to silence a particular battery. One gunner was heard to say:

"I believe I can knock down the left turret at the first shot." When the smoke had cleared away the turret had disappeared. The same voice spoke again: "Now the right turret. In a flash the second mark was in ruins."

Heavy Losses Reported.

London, October 4.—A Rome dispatch from Tripoli says it is believed that the garrison has suffered very heavy losses and that the governor is wounded. It appears that even after the demolition of the forts the Turkish gunners continued to serve such runs as were available. It became necessary for the warships to train their guns upon the ruins. Several private houses were destroyed by fire, but none was struck by shells. The town has been entirely deserted by the inhabitants.

Surrender Not Confirmed.

Rome, October 4.—The bombardment of Tripoli was resumed this morning with the object of completing the destruction of the batteries. Up to 6 o'clock this evening no official confirmation of the surrender of Tripoli could be obtained.

Difficulties Multiplying.

Constantinople, October 4.—Political difficulties within the capital are multiplying, and it seems impossible to form a cabinet. Members of the Committee of the Union and Progress are unwilling to take office, as they do not wish to assume responsibility for recent events, while the elder statesmen refuse to undertake the task of government unless the government is reformed and dissolved. A deadlock practically has been reached, and the only solution to serve the best interests of the country is held to be dissolution of the committee and the ending of the war without delay on the best terms obtainable.

Emmanuel Going to Rome.

Paris, October 4.—A special to the Temps from Rome says that King Victor Emmanuel will leave Racconigi for Rome to-morrow. After an audience with the Minister of War and Marine, His Majesty will go to Naples for a farewell to the troops embarking for Tripoli.

Imposing Manoeuvres.

Rome, October 4.—The Secolo publishes an account of the manoeuvres of the Italian squadron before Tripoli when the bombardment began. The dispatch is sent by Deputy de Felice, who was aboard the torpedo cruiser Coati.

All the consulates in Tripoli hoisted their flags. The ships formed in line before the forts—the flagship Benedetto Brin, followed by the battleships Roma, Neapol, Sicilia, the armored cruisers Giuseppe Garibaldi, Francesco

The Men

Let us point out a few of the high-flyers in our Fall Overcoats designed for young men.

A knee length gray-tan rough, wooly surface, dark pronounced striped, velvet collar.

Another in smooth light grey, very full skirt, big buttons and long lapels.

Other Overcoats in the regular conservative styles that every man likes $15 to $40.

But our rule of short advertisements forbids long descriptions. You are invited to look over the stock as if you owned it—as the Spanish say, "The store is yours."

New Fall Hats, $1.85 to $6.00. Crown and brim to harmonize with the overcoat.

Feruccio, Amalfi, the battleship Sardegna and the torpedo cruiser Coati. Torpedo boat destroyers circled between the fleet and the coast. A line of warships of Italy stretched between Tripoli and the Tunisian frontier, on one side, and from Benghazi to the Bombah Gulf up to the Egyptian frontier, on the other.

From Derna another line of ships extends northward to face any attack from Turkish ships. A torpedo flotilla, commanded by the Duke of the Abruzzi, patrols the sea from Crete, around Greece, to the Ionian and the Adriatic Seas. Thus the squadron operating before Tripoli is protected from all sides.

Drawn up in war array, the squadron had an imposing and formidable aspect. With the sailors at their posts and with the crews at their guns, the signal for the attack was awaited with breathless anxiety. Suddenly the flag-signaled, "Hold full bunting," and the fleet, transformed into ships of peace, in their dress of flags and bunting, steamed slowly past Tripoli, as if in review. It was the last attempt of Admiral Aubrey to show his forces to the enemy, that they might be induced to surrender.

But the Turks refused to cede. The ships returned, and several of them formed in battle line. The cannonade began against the forts, the barracks and the palace of the Governor, while officers with telescopes watched the shells falling into Tripoli.

Mytilene Bombarded.

London, October 4.—A news agency dispatch from Vienna says it is reported from Constantinople that an Italian squadron has bombarded and occupied Mytilene, capital of the Island of Lesbos, in the Grecian archipelago, belonging to Turkey.

JOHN J. McNAMARA FIRST

He Will Be Tried for Dynamiting Times Plant.

Los Angeles, Cal., October 4.—John J. McNamara will be the first of the McNamara brothers, the alleged Times dynamiters, to be tried. District Attorney John D. Fredericks made the announcement to-night following the defense's decision to deny McNamara separate trials for the McNamara trial will open next Wednesday morning.

The Boys

There's no awkward age if the boys are clothed here.

The tailor who designed these suits and overcoats has studied the angles of growing boys and made garments with gracefulness.

Special "first trousers" for long legs.

Slip-ons; just the thing for showery school days, $4.50 and $5.

Storm Coats as reliable and well made as if the boy paid the man's price.

Everything for your boy's proper wear at play, at the gymnasium, at school, at the party or at church, is here, at the fairest of prices, because our facilities for buying and producing clothes for boys are the best.

Come and see.

William Hodges Mann, at the Executive Mansion, between the hours of 3 and 11 o'clock. The last two business sessions of the Richmond convention take place to-day at 10 A. M. and 2 P. M. Several reports are yet to be considered, and these will be disposed of at the morning meeting. In the afternoon will take place the annual election of officers and the selection of the next meeting place. The entertainment to-day will consist of an automobile tour of the city for the visiting women and a banquet to-night at the Jefferson. The convention will come to an end to-morrow with a trip down the James on the steamer Pocahontas.

MONEY WAS SPENT WITH LAVISH HAND

What was the money spent for?" asked the chairman.

"I don't know. I suppose for organizing."

"Don't use that word organize. It's a glittering political generalization used to avoid the necessity of particularizing."

Taking up the total of moneys paid to organizers, Edmonds said that, although about $58,000 of the $107,723 campaign fund had passed through the headquarters at Milwaukee, where he was in charge, he could not mention any item wherein he was given an itemized account of just how the money was spent.

FAULTS AND FUTURES

City Management Discussed by League of Municipalities.

Atlanta, Ga., October 4.—Faults and futures of cities in the United States and Canada were discussed to-day at the opening sessions of the fifteenth annual convention of the League of American Municipalities. The meetings will continue three days, and every phase of local government will be taken up in an effort to evolve ways to benefit the city dweller.

The principal addresses to-day were assigned to Mayor Darius A. Brown, of Kansas City, who is president of the league; Mayor Samuel Carson, of Jamestown, N. Y., on the "Future City"; Mayor J. C. Haynes, of Minneapolis, on "What a Live City Can Do Under an Antiquated Charter," and Wilson J. Vance, secretary to the Mayor of Newark, N. J., on "Municipal Finance Funds."

Discussion of the speeches was led by Mayor J. C. Riddick, of Norfolk.

About 300 delegates from the United States and Canada joined the discussion.

Scottish Surgeon Was Original of Famous Detective Character.

London, October 4.—Joseph Bell, the eminent Scottish surgeon, who was the original of the character of "Sherlock Holmes," died to-day at his home, Marplewood, Miltonbridge, Midlothian. He was born in Edinburgh in 1827, and was an instructor of Conan Doyle at Edinburgh University. His hobby was the study of mysterious crimes.

PRESIDENT TAFT ROUNDLY SCORED

His Tariff Record Denounced in Rhode Island Democratic Platform.

Providence, R. I., October 4.—Despite some expressions of dissatisfaction prior to the Democratic State Convention here to-day by delegates who did not like the idea of having the Central Committee draw up a ticket of State officers, this ticket was accepted by the convention. The nominees for Governor, Lewis A. Waterman, of Providence, also led the party last year. The other nominees are: Lieutenant-Governor, Albert A. Archambault, of Warwick; Secretary of State, Sayles B. Steers, of Gloucester; Attorney-General, James A. Cahill, of East Providence.

General Treasurer, Albert M. Steinert, of Providence. In the platform adopted President Taft is roundly denounced for vetoing the tariff bills, his action being attributed to the fact that "these bills came from a Democratic House," constitutional amendments providing for the election of United States Senators by direct vote, and for an income tax law, recommending a "reasonable regulation" of corporations to the Democratic platform also commends the Democrats of the Sixty-second Congress, who "faithfully carried out the pledges of the Democratic party in passing much needed tariff legislation."

Referring to President Taft, the platform says: "Although the present tariff law has been seriously criticized by President Taft, he vetoed bills intended to correct it in correct in the injustices. Both these bills came from a Democratic House. Despite his flimsy excuse that he desired testimony from a board of tariff experts before permitting any amendment of the present tariff, the people of this country will suffer during the approaching winter because of the tariff which the Payne-Aldrich tariff should be reduced."

welcome, nearly all the business houses of Lynchburg being represented.

Entertainment to the visitors was given at the Piedmont Club, to which the Boosters had marched in a column of fours and then entered single file.

The mayor of Lynchburg lies ill in a hospital, but the honorees of the occasion were able to perform by William King, Jr. When they entered the clubrooms the Richmonders sang their way into the hearts of their hosts as they raised their voices in their battle hymn.

They say that Lynchburg isn't got no style at all, but she's got style all the while, all the while.

They called on Henry Hotchkiss for a speech, but he gave them a song. He said that he was brought along to sing, not to speak, and that he had none of the singing. He took time, however, to tell the Richmond party had nowhere been more cordially than in this city, which seems to be all hills. Then there were calls for Mr. King.

Speaking in behalf of Lynchburg citizens, Mr. King said that they had always respected Richmond, and that his people were always glad to see anything or any people of Richmond the city he termed the exponent of the civilization of Virginia.

Major J. C. Hemphill introduced Mayor Richardson as a representative citizen and the best Mayor in the South.

"Best Mayor" Talks.

"Our enthusiasm is unabated," said the Richmond Mayor, "and we give you thanks for the very cordial greeting you have extended to us. We were well received in North Carolina, for those North Carolinians are a hospitable people, and we are glad that our own people have not forgotten us. And now, as I can well assure you, we expect to work all the harder for our city, for our people and for Virginia. We are all working towards the same end, and Richmond stands today not only for her own development, but for the well-being of the State and the progress of the whole South and people."

Singing another song and passing beneath banners of welcome, the visitors marched again through the streets to their train and received again a hearty cheer of greeting, with a good "fare-you-well" at the end.

Lynchburg was hospitably itself, and the how-dye-do folks, who have received nothing but sincere welcome wherever they have tarried, were sorry that they had not longer here to stay.

Leaving Lynchburg, the Boosters proceeded to Charlottesville, where they were met at the junction depot by Mayor Hayden, representative business men and citizens. Immediately upon disembarking the how-dye-do folks proceeded upon a march through the town, traveling along Main Street, the lower part of which, now rebuilt, was the scene several years ago of a destructive fire. Jeter Jones, acted as bandmaster and led the procession, while Charlie Boschen was colonel of the brigade. Almost to the lower depot the procession went, and then, with a right about face, it turned back and marched towards the station.

It was a case of Charlottesville being "there with the goods," for all the people were on the streets, and the greeting was hearty and warm.

Then came Orange, the progressive town of a county of the same name, and the Boosters were greeted by the Orange people and his sister, Miss Robertson, editors of the Orange Observer, and by a large delegation of citizens and a number of pretty Orange College girls. The band came out and played, and the Orange people said that they were glad to welcome the Richmond party in their midst.

Arrival in Culpeper, the last stopping place on the itinerary before reaching Washington, was earlier than expected, the train having made up for lost time. But Mayor H. C. Burroughs, a colonel in the Civil War, with a large body of his people, was at the station when the train pulled in. There was a short march up the principal street of the town, the band played all the way and then a song at the station before the visitors' train pulled out for the capital city of the nation.

Addresses From Merchants.

A. L. Goodloe, president of the Merchants' Retail Association, of Culpeper, was among the committee to greet the Richmonders, and presented the following address of welcome to J. St. George Bryan, of The Times-Dispatch Company:

"The Boys of the Richmond Boosters' Special:

Gentlemen—We welcome you with hearty approval of your business enterprise and progressive action, and only wish you could make your stay in our midst long enough for us to show you some of our business interests. We wish you much success. The only point in which you have our sympathy is the fact of Richmond being too far from Culpeper for you to properly enjoy life.

"Here are all good wishes for the 'Richmond Boosters' from the 'Very truly yours, (Signed) 'A. L. Goodloe, 'President Retail Merchants' Association.'"

As the train had made up lost time and gone ahead of its schedule, a fifteen minutes' stop was made at Manassas, near which the battle of the same name occurred in the days of 61-65. Some enterprising citizens of Culpeper must have warned the citizens of the approach of the Boosters, for half the town was present at the station, when with a hurrah and a shout, the special train pulled into a siding.

Among those who met the Boosters were Lieutenant George C. Round, who claims to have obtained his commission in the Northern army from Abraham Lincoln. Now he sees the error of his ways, and declares himself a true Southerner.

"I led the Yankees once," he said, "but to-day you find me helping to lead both the blue and the gray."

Another prominent citizen was J. K. U. Roop, president of the Eastern College, who welcomed Mayor Richardson to his town. The Boosters passed a short distance through the streets and were acclaimed on all sides.

"Come to the fair," they yelled. And the people of Manassas answered, "we are coming."

BLINDED BY HEADLIGHT

Driver of Automobile Killed in Collision With Trolley Car.

Jamaica, N. Y., October 4.—One man was killed and his two companions were fatally injured in a head-on collision here early this morning between his automobile and a Long Island trolley car. James Colton, the owner of the automobile, was thrown clear over the top of the trolley car in the crash and his neck broken. His two friends were pinned underneath the wreckage. The automobile, a $6,000 car, which was making forty miles an hour when the collision occurred, was reduced to a mass of junk. The street car also suffered severely, and the passengers were much shaken.

Colton's companions said that he was blinded by the headlight on the trolley car as it rounded a curve, and lost control of his steering wheel.

R. W. Watkins.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Houaton, Va., October 4.—R. W. Watkins, sixty-four years old, died at his home in Houaton this morning at 5:30 o'clock, his illness having extended over a period of three months, during which time he was twice operated upon by the late Dr. J. H. Watkins.

Mr. Watkins was a native of Virginia, and was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was a resident of Richmond, where he became the partner in the practice of law of the Hon. Geo. D. Wise, under the name of Watkins & Wise. Besides being a lawyer of note, Mr. Watkins was closely identified with the business interests of his county, being a member of the Board of Directors of the Planters' and Merchants' National Bank of South Boston, and president of the People's Bank of Houaton. He was also a member of the Town Council and a vestryman in St. John's Episcopal Church, Houaton.

In 1875 he married Miss Fanny M. Melvin, of Accomac county, by whom he is survived with the following children: Mrs. B. M. Roseboro, of Richmond; Mrs. W. P. Desautels, of New York; and H. B. M. Watkins and Miss Katherine Watkins, of Houaton.

Funeral services will be held from St. John's Episcopal Church to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. On Friday morning Mr. Watkins' remains will be taken to Richmond for interment in Hollywood Cemetery.
